centrated in two Atlantic cities-Nantuc New Pedford—with a rendezvous station in the Pacific ocean at Honolulu, whither the whalers went to refit and ship their oil back into Atlan. tic waters (for less money than they couldcarry it themselves) after long, hard battles with the howheads and finbacks in shanter bay and Cook's inlet. But the never-failing 'quiput of the oil wells in the bituminous regions of Pennsylvania and Ohio begen to fernish the great world with a cheaper idunitating agent, and the oil and of China began to compete in the production of a inbricator. The whating interest hegan to decline. The old ships were out, and the shrewd old heads of these two Massachusetts. towns began to put their money into other investments, such as railroad stocks and government securities. The old hulks that had defied the ice of northern gulfs and antartic seas, rotted away quietly at their native docks and no new ones were built to take their places. The two husiest scaports of their size on the whole American coast began to pine away tiff grass grew h

From 1849 to 1869 San Francisco had been constantly claynoring for her merchants to arise and take decisive measures for securing the three-fifths went into Honolulu to refit, while the remaining two-fiths was about equall-divided between Talachuana and Taliti. The captains of whaters were loft to go into Sar Francisco for fear that their crews would deser. the ships and go to the mines, but that day is gone by. There are no placer diagings in California to-day that will pay a hard-working man-half as good a living as he could make on board ller in the course of the year, and shrewe whaling men have at last begun to see the ac vantages that San Francisco possesses over the ports in the Hawaiian and Society islands. But the growth of San Francisco as a whating port is due to one cause alone-the investrent of local capital in such en-trprises. An ingentous mechanic of that city concerted the tides of building a bark-elgged vessel of about 450 tons, equipped with a small steam engine and a screw so shipped as to be capable of being detached and hauled in out of water whenever the wind blew free, so as to dispense with steam altogether. In the cutting up and boiling down of whale fat there is a large portion of waste which was alway the purchase of a great deal of coal. Nine these steam whalers, all built in San Francisc these steam whalers, all built in San Francisco and owned there, now ply between that port and the whaling grounds in the Ochotsk sear and seventeen salling reseals, mostly barks and schooners, also owned there, are engaged in the whaling traffic in Panific waters. Of these but three sail vessels and one steamer report indifferent business for the season of 1884, which is now just at its close. Most of the fleet have returned to San Francisco to retit for the coeff returned to San Francisco to refit for the next season's work. The wages paid the crew will all be spent there during the winter and so will all the owners' profits on the voyages of the vessels, thereby greatly enriching the city. The mouth of the Columbia river lies 500 miles nearer the whaling grounds than San Francisco, and whalers could therefore save 1000 miles on a round trip to and from the Arctic by roming here and shipping their oil east by the Northern Pacific road, instead of sending it by the routes leading out of San Francisco. But it is plain that the Columbia river will never enjoy any such traffic cutil she builds or buys the vessels and equips them her self. San Francisco waited for the never came. She then stepped into the market and began to sould her own vessels, and from that day she has continued to draw away the trade from Honolulu and the old refitting tosts of former days. Portland has enough box1 wealth to equip and manage at least a dozen whaling results in the Arctic seals, but we de-spair of ever seeing one during the present gen-eration. She could build and it out four steam-ers and eight sailing barks for that trade just as as not; but we are afraid that the sund spirit of enterprise which has actuated our sister city, over which we have 1000 infles of an indis-putable advantage, will never strike Portland. It is not contagious enough to do any good, and before it comes along to benefit us in an we fear that we shall be called upon to wit it so the solemnization of several first-class funerals.

FROM FOR THE PRESENT AND PT.

There is no election pending just now, and, therefore, it should not be regarded as "waving the bloody shirt" to make a record of a few facts.

In the state of Louisians, at the late election the total vote was, in round numbers, 106,007. Louisiana elects six congressmen, which allows 16,866 for each district; but upward of 50,000 votes were polled in two districts, leaving an average of 14,000 votes for each of the other average vote, for congress men per district was 85,860.

South Carolina clocks six members of congreen. The aggregate vote in that state at the late election was $4,000, or an average of 14 000

The average vote in this for members of con-gress was 35,200, in New York 35,300, in Kaps is grees was 35,200, in New York 15,300, in Kapers 18,400, in Nebraska 64,400, in Virginia, where negroes and white republicans (with a few local exceptions) vote without molestation, the average vote per congressional district was upward of 28,000.

And still we are told that bulboring and intimidation were not includiged in anywhere in the cotton states. The man who believes such a thing is an incorpanies or a simpleton. a thing is an ignoramus or a simpleton.

A probabilion friend has shown us a letter from John P. St. John, written in reply to an inquiry concerning the subject matter of a special to THE OBERONIAN, dated Washington, D. C., November 16, in which St. John was charged with selling out the problidition party for money. He says in his letter: "When ver all your asserts that I ever sold, or attampted to directly or indirectly, the probling tion party to the democrats or republicans, or to anybody else, or ever did or offered to do any thing for the purpose of lessening the vote of the prohibition party, or increasing the vote of either of the old parties, or that I did atherwise than make an honest, conscientious and tathful fight for the cause of prohibition, ho tells an in-fameous and malicious falsehood," There is more of the letter, but this is the gist of it, which we publish by request, omitting, the by request, the name of the person to whom the letter was written. This story about St. John has often been told, but it was an injudicious thing to do, because, as it is not likely to; be proven, it only adds to his notoriety and confirms his views as to his own importance. It is off a piece with the fully of burning him in effigy. Let alone he would be unimportant. Give him a chance to cry "persecution," and he is furnished with twing for entiless discourse. is farnished with texts for endless discourse,

The foolish ramer that Senator Slater had written a letter to President-elect Cleveland, in forming him that a well-known and deserving democrat here had expressed a willingness; to accept the postmustership of Portland, may be set down as a dastardly post-campaign lie. Everybody who has read democratic newspaners ice 1860 is perfectly well aware that there isn't a demogration the continent in good and regular standing in his party that does not loathe and detest "a federal officeholder."

Portland has been snowed under now for a week, and there has not been enterprise enough as yet to shovel the snow off the sidewalks even on the business streets. But fortunately this seeming paralysis is not hurling Portland's feading industry. Interest accumplates as rapidly these days as ever. Weather can't kill cent per cent.
